

Career Educator Awards

What are the Awards?

The Department of Medical Education Early Career Educator and Mid-to Late Career Educator Awards were created to recognize and honor dedication and outstanding teaching/leadership by a member of the Texas A&M University School of Medicine employed/affiliated faculty and staff.

For each award, one faculty/staff member from each of our campuses and sites (10 locations total) will be recognized annually with a plaque and professional development award.

Early Career Educator award = $1000

Mid-/Late-Career Educator award = $1200

Who can be Nominated?

Nominations are welcomed for any faculty or staff member in the Department of Medical Education who meets the following eligibility requirements:

- For the Early Career Educator Award, the nominee must not have been involved in teaching, mentoring, or leadership roles for more than six (6) years.
- For the Mid-to Late-Career Educator Award, the nominee must be involved in teaching, mentoring, or leadership roles for greater than 6 years.
- The nominees for either award cannot have won the award previously.

The Early Career Educator Award nominee must be or have been involved in three or more of the following activities. The Mid- to Late Career Educator Award nominee must be or have been involved in four or more of the following activities.

- Teaching formal courses (UME, School of Medicine sponsored or affiliated residency programs, graduate sciences education) or who has done so until the semester in which the packet is submitted.
- Counseling and/or advising UME, GME, or graduate students.
- Directing UME or GME student research.
- Directing graduate student theses and/or dissertations.
- Serving as faculty advisor to student clubs/interest groups and/or activities.
- Developing and/or introducing innovative teaching methods.
- Participating in and/or directing development of new courses or curriculum.
- Participating in curriculum-related committees and/or task forces

Who can Nominate?

Nominations may be made by any campus or site dean, faculty, staff, student, or student organization in the School of Medicine. Multiple nominations from each campus or site are welcome. We encourage nominations for faculty and staff regardless of degree, area of focus, or appointments, provided that above eligibility requirements are met. We encourage nominations of teaching faculty and staff to be recognized for their commitment and dedication to Texas A&M learners.

Application for the annual Career Educator Awards opens May 1 and closes May 31.
